Treasurer of Cambria county.
Treasurer's office, March 31, 1892.

Happy and content is a bride with "The Rochester;" she lives in the light of the morning. To learn more, write Rochester Lamp Co., New York.

THE FREEMAN is the largest paper in North-Cambria. Don't forget it.

"IN SOME WAY OR OTHER."

In a rickety house, 'mid a garden of weeds
That flourished unhindered to scatter their seeds,
Where the cobwebs excluded the sweet light of morn,
A woman sat lolly, in garments forlorn;
She looked at the holes in the rat-eaten floor,
And the rafts, not too clean, that her little ones wore;
Then smoothed her torn wrapper, and peacefully sighed:
"In some way or other the Lord will provide."

Her husband sat out by the door in the shade,
With his head on his chair-back contentedly laid,
While the briars and weeds did his meadows enthrall,
And the grass in his field was outstripping the corn.
Of rents on his trousers there store was no lack,
And his coat was just ready to fall from his back;
But how calmly observed, when these facts he discerned:
"In some way or other the Lord will provide."

"In some way or other," it may be, but sure
Th' Lord, although patient and long to endure,
Can neither be expected to still feed the mouth
Who has had the chance on to do what he can;
And although He responsible to the Jews of the land,
And smart as His beauties on every hand,
He doesn't put bread ready made on the shelf,
But even a chicken must scratch for himself.

And I think He is far better pleased with the folks
Who tackle life bravely and cheer it with jokes,
Who grapple and buckle the journey along,
And sing in the clinkin with a laugh and a song,
Than with those who so solemnly sit them-selves down,
In self-pity, to play a role and a crown.
And pluckily chant, as they drift with the tide:
"In some way or other the Lord will provide."

TRUE AS STEEL.

The Story of Faithful Kitchen Anne.

We called her Kitchen Anne. This was because we had another Anne in the family, and two of the same name is a house makes confusion.

She was a "Svenska" girl—tow-headed, blue-eyed and only sixteen when she came to work for us.

She was rather stupid and slow, but very willing, and so sorry for her blunders that I suspect almost cruel to be impatient with her.

She did try so hard to learn. It was really pathetic to see her with the open cook book before her, tracing with a horny finger the words which she could not read. It was rather a mystery to me that she managed always to open the book at the right place to find the recipe she wished, but when I turned the pages and found a lump of bread dough where the bread-making rules were, a grease spot to mark the pastry pages and sundry egg and sugar traces on the cake recipes, I understood.

She had an innate love of dainty things. She used to take a childish delight in examining the contents of the rag-bags, which we turned over to her. The scraps of bright silk and velvet were her treasures, and I often recognized bits of lace, which had done former duty on underclothing, carefully darned and ornamenting her handkerchiefs. From the borders of some fine linen doilies she painstakingly studied out the patterns of drawn work, and I could but marvel at her patience when I saw that she had reproduced the cobwebby patterns on the edges of some coarse cotton-cloth mats for her washstand.

But I must tell you about Patrick. His name was not the only misleading thing about him, as we found to our sorrow, but that was delusive enough, for he was a Swede. Anne told me he took it because he disliked his Swedish name. Whether it was a given name or surname it went for both, for he said that one name was "a plenta"—so Patrick he was and Patrick only.

He was Anne's lover. Two evenings each week he sat with her in the kitchen, bashful, red-faced, solemn and silent. He sat at one side of the stove, she at the other, each in a wooden rocking-chair. Her chair creaked and his groaned as they rocked slowly and rhythmically, and the rhythm was accentuated by their four feet striking the floor at the same instant.

Scarcely a word was said by him from his first greeting until he said good night, yet somehow his wooing progressed and prospered. On Sundays they went together to the little Swede church.

Thus uneventfully enough their courtship ran on for more than a year, when one day Anne told me that she was going to leave me because she was to be married.

I remonstrated, urging her extreme youth, but she was "most eighteen," she said, and Patrick had already rented two beautiful rooms and had furnished them for her, and he was making money at his trade. So I said no more but helped her in her plans for housekeeping.

And so they were married—just at holiday time—and a proud and happy bride was Mrs. Patrick, possessed of two cozy little rooms, with a stove, six chairs, an alarm clock, a bed, a table and a cupboard full of dishes.

We saw but little of Anne that winter. She had some boarders—some men who took their meals there—and she was very busy.

Sometimes on a Sunday she would come in for a few moments to tell me how she was getting on, and I noticed that she was growing thin and white, and with a worried, anxious look, quite new to our rosy, phlegmatic Kitchen Anne.

Once I questioned her a little. Was she well?

"Oh, yes, well, only tired; not so very tired, just some tired."

"Was Patrick good to her?"

"Oh, yess"—but she must be going now.

One day in the early spring, Christine, Anne's married sister, came to see me about Anne. Patrick, she told me, had "skipped out." Left his debts and Anne and gone "nord to Mcenesota." Anne had not said so, but Ole, Christine's "man," had told her so. "An' my man," added she, "says he won't come back to her no more than he did to his other wife."

"His other wife!" echoed I.

"Yes, the one that's to Chicago."

"What! Has Patrick been married before? Is he divorced?" asked I, in one breath.

"No, not divorced. He told her that he didn't want her no longer, an'—an' he was going to marry agen, an' she say 'ver' well, if you likes anoder better than me I am willing.' So he didn't need no divorce."

"And did Anne know this?"

"Oh, no; she wouldn't hear when we tried to tell her, an' now she won't talk none about him. Why, I was there to dinner onet, an' Patrick he come in drunk, an' when he went out I says: 'Patrick, he's pretty drunk, ain't he?' an' Anne she says, awful fierce: 'He hain't drunk!'"

I told Christine to say nothing to Anne of my knowing her trouble, but to ask her if she would come and work for me for a few weeks preparatory to our moving to another city.

Anne came, and soon went about her work just as she used, only that she was very quiet, and looked hollow-eyed and sad. Patrick had gone "nord, to Mcenesota," where he could make lots of money, but he would come back. "Oh, yes, he would come back soon," she said, with a little catch of her breath that went to my heart.

Christine came often, and from her I learned that Patrick had taken with him several sums of borrowed money, and that he had said that he did not mean to return.

Anne, with a quiet dignity strange in one of her class, kept her troubles and her sorrow to herself. The day before we left for our new home she came and begged me to take her with me.

"Until Patrick comes?" asked I. Then she broke down and told me all. Patrick had gone for good. He had told her that he was tired of her. She had supported him all winter, and now she wanted to earn money to pay his debts.

I asked how she would dispose of her furniture. It was not hers, she said; it had never been paid for. Patrick had bought it on "credit," and she had sent it back, and now she had nothing—no, nothing of her own, except her beautiful dishes, and she would never have any use for them again. Then she broke down completely and sobbed bitterly.

She packed away her one possession and stored the box at Christine's, and then she came away with us. All of her wages she sent to pay Patrick's debts. We told her that she was not responsible for his debts, and urged her to save her money for herself; but she would not. She said that Patrick had borrowed from those who could not afford to lose their money, and he told us of one old man who, unknown to his shrewd but shrewish wife, had loaned Patrick all of his little hoard of savings. His wife scolded him and sometimes struck him, Anne said, because he was poor, and Anne must pay him back before the old woman found that it was all gone.

At first Anne was diverted by her new surroundings but soon she began to lose interest in her work, and having once broken her silence concerning her troubles, she poured them forth freely. She said that it had all come upon her for a punishment. It was because she had loved Patrick too much—better than her father or mother. She said that now her life was all over, and she was "jung—so jung—only eighteen years."

As both interest and health flagged, I sent her back to her people, where they said she wandered about in a shabby gown, rarely roused from her melancholy and seeming half crazed by her grief. Then gradually I lost all trace of her.

Three years ago a friend sent me a slip cut from a country paper. It stated that Patrick had been arrested in Minnesota for bigamy and was now lodged in jail. He had three wives, but two, the Chicago woman and the girl whom he married in Minnesota, made the trouble. He was sent to the penitentiary for two years, his offense, having two living wives. Anne would not appear against him. Again I lost trace of Anne until one day the postman brought an awkwardly-directed parcel, not quite sure of the address. I recognized Anne's writing and claimed the package. It contained several yards of beautifully-made linen lace, but not a word except Anne's name and address.

Fine and exquisite, I knew what hours of patient and loving labor the lace meant for poor Anne's slow, clumsy fingers, and I was touched by the gift.

A letter of thanks to her brought a long reply. Anne was living in a penitentiary town, working and waiting for Patrick to serve his term, which was nearing completion.

His troubles had made a good man of him, she wrote, and he wanted to marry her when he was free. She had forgiven him and she—well, she loved him—that was all.

"And so they were married" once more, and she wrote me, to quote her words—that "life was sweet agen." She sent me a photograph of herself and husband, brave in bridal finery. They stand hand in hand and look as stiff and awkward as only bridal couples can look in a picture. With a bit of sentiment that has a touch of pathos in it, Anne wears her old wedding gown. It is short in the skirt and cruelly tight in the waist and sleeves—for the Anne of to-day is no seventeen-year-old girl.

Both her face and Patrick's show lines that were not there when I saw them last. The corn-colored mustache which was Patrick's glory had disappeared, and his head is too closely cropped for beauty, but there is an earnest expression on his face which I like, and which promises better things for poor, faithful Anne. And I believe that she will be happy, for such constancy must touch Patrick's heart.

There is nothing that heals a broken heart like time,

Notice to Democrats.

To the Democrats of Cambria county.

Please take notice that those desiring to become candidates for the nominations for the several county offices at our coming June primary election will be required to meet in Ebensburg on Monday, May 23, 1892, for the purpose of arranging for the printing of tickets and defraying the expenses incident to such primary elections. All persons desiring to become candidates as aforesaid are cautioned to be present or to be represented at said meeting; otherwise, under the rules, their names will not be printed upon the tickets.

CHARLES M. SWANK,
Chairman Democratic County Committee.
Johnstown, Pa., April 18, 1892.

THE Supreme court has decided that the Baker ballot reform law is constitutional.

THE Senate has passed a bill appropriating $150,000 for a public building at Altoona.

J. NORMAN MARTIN of New Castle was commissioned judge of the Butler-Lawrence district in place of the late judge Michael.

THE United States Supreme court has given judgment in favor of the state of Pennsylvania in the state tax suit between the state and the Lehigh Valley railroad company.

Mr. CLARK, of Wyoming, has introduced in the House a bill giving every woman in the country who is over 21 years of age the right to vote for representatives in Congress.

THE fact that a reduction in the wages of iron workers is going on in all the industrial centres in the country would seem to be sufficient cause for the iron manufacturers to demand another raise in the tariff.

ONE thousand more coke ovens were blown out of blast last week in the Connellsville region, but the coke workers have the consolation of knowing that a high tariff gives them protection if it does not give them bread and butter.

A BILL in equity was filed in the United States circuit court at Philadelphia by the government against the sugar trust to prevent the consummation of the recent deal by which the trust obtained control of the individual refineries in that city.

IT is reported that Tom Reed and Secretary Blaine both expect the Republican candidate for the presidency to meet with defeat in November. But these opinions will not make any appreciable difference in the number of aspirants for the nomination at Minneapolis.

SECRETARY FOSTER'S advice to office-holders, "especially in the South," that they should not go to the Minneapolis convention, is good as far as it goes. But why should the proprieties apply especially to the South and why should there be any invidous distinction between state and national conventions?

LAST Sunday, May 1, the day generally chosen in Europe for riotous demonstrations, and dreaded this year particularly in France on account of the Anarchist troubles in Paris, happily passed off without any noted disturbance of public order. The precautions taken by the goverment were complete and to this fact may be attributed the quietness that generally prevailed.

THE census bureau at Washington on Tuesday issued a bulletin giving the results of the eleventh census regarding dwellings and families in the United States. These results are for the year 1890. The bulletin shows that the number of dwellings in the United States in 1890 was 11,483,318, and in 1880, 8,, 695,812. The average number of persons to a dwelling in 1890 for the United States was 5.45 as against 5.60 in 1880.

SENATOR ALDRICH practically announced at Washington on Monday that no tariff legislation would pass the Senate this session. This was apropos of the free binding twine bill passed by the House. Even this bill which the West wants so much, he said, would not pass and intimated that to prevent any awkwardness the Finance committee would not embarrass the Western Republican Senators by reporting the bill. The Republicans have taken their stand on the McKinley law and there they apparently propose to remain.

FIRE in Philadelphia, Wednesday night, destroyed the Central Theatre, the Times' magnificent eight-story building and several other structures, involving a loss of about $1,000,000. Nine persons perished in the theatre and 30 others were more or less injured. Editor McClure's political library, embracing collections of 50 years and believed to be the most complete in America, was consumed with the Times building. Notwithstanding the great loss, the Times appeared next morning as usual, being issued from the office of the Record.

UNDER the pernicious sugar bounty provisions of the McKinley bill, says the Pittsburg Post, the internal revenue department, which has charge of the payments, has received and passed upon 2,-784 bounty claims. They represent in bounty $7,275,294, of which total $5,-954,916 has already been paid. Of this sum received by the sugar producers Louisiana has received $5,534,385. The total production of sugar last season in Louisiana was about 350,000,000 pounds which will entitle the planters to bounty to the amounts something short of $7,-000,000. The consumption of the country is about ten times the Louisiana product.

The payments have fallen below the estimates, which were put as high as $12,000,000, but the crop fell short of expectations owing to unfavorable weather. In Louisiana a much larger acreage was planted in the expectation of profiting by the bounty, but overflow and excessive drought during the summer months seriously impared the promise of crop, accounting for the light yield which resulted. Nevertheless, according to the New Orleans Picayune, "the prices received for the season's yield were fairly satisfactory, considering the increased competition due to the free sugar law, and this fact, together with the bounty paid by the government, has made the result of the season not unsatisfactory to the planters." We should say so. The distribution of over six millions of dollars among the limited number of planters, who received, aside from the bounty, remunerative prices for their product, ought to make the business very profitable, and it is so no doubt. Of course the bounty, like protection for the impoverished Carnegies of the North, now becomes a necessity to be continued indefinitely. They can't get along without it. But what better claim have the sugar farmers for a government bounty than the grain farmers or the oil producers? The latter are suffering from low prices because of Russian competition. Why not vote them a bounty of two cents a pound on the oil they produce?

SENATOR HILL, speaking at Washington last week of the Apportionment in Albany, said:

I do not conceal my gratification over the result of the new apportionment made by the Legislature to-day. It is the crowning act of last fall's victory. Its importance cannot be over estimated. It enables the people for the first time in thirty years to be equitably and fairly represented in the legislature, and gives to the Democratic party hereafter the control of that body in both branches.

The apportionment is both morally right and constitutionally correct. The pretense of the Republicans that it is unconstitutional will avail them nothing. The court must and will decide against them, because their claims are frivolous and ungrounded. For seven years the Republicans refused to take an enumeration to make an apportionment when they had an opportunity to do so themselves, and now they must suffer the consequences of their folly.

The Democrats will now realize the importance of their triumph last fall and appreciate how much they have secured by obtaining the present Democratic legislature. Some concessions, which ought not to have been insisted upon, were necessarily made to secure the passage of the bill, but they will only reduce and will not cripple or affect our control. The legislature is to be congratulated on its good work. It has made, upon the whole, a most creditable record.

THE Pennsylvania Democratic state convention, says the New York World, acted wisely. Most of its members preferred the nomination of Grover Cleveland, and expressed that preference plainly in a resolution. But they declined to bind their delegates by instructions, leaving them free to consult and deliberate in the National Convention with their fellow-delegates from other states.

This is the proper attitude to be taken by all Democrats. It is particularly appropriate for the Democrats of Pennsylvania who realize that in Governor Pattison the party has a candidate who would make an admirable leader in case the National Convention should find it unwise to nominate any citizen of the state of New York.

The platform adopted is sound. It favors the "gold and silver coinage of the constitution" and "a currency convertible with such coinage without loss," and it also asserts that tariff reform is the paramount issue, and that the country should be "relieved from necessary and unjust taxation and enjoy the benefit of free raw materials." This is a long step away from the old traditions of Pennsylvania and is most encouraging.

GENERAL GREGG on Tuesday, at Harrisburg, began his duties as auditor general. He has selected Captain Peter B. Bucker, of Jerseyshore, as corporation clerk in place of Colonel John A. Glenn, removed. Colonel Hamptom Thomas, of Philadelphia, will be made chief clerk, Henry C. Greenawalt, of Franklin, who now holds that position, has been notified that his services will not be required after June 1. General Gregg says he will make no other changes for the present. He is anxious to familiarize himself with the workings of the department before removing any of the clerks.

THE Executive committee of the state league of colored Democratic voters met in Harrisburg on Tuesday week and decided to send delegates from the various Democratic organizations throughout the state to the national conference of colored Democrats at Chicago, June 21.

THE Lower California volcanic region is again in active eruption, caused by recent earthquakes.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C. April 30, 1892. Mr. Harrison did not return from his visit to New York feeling in a very good humor. The egotism of the man is so great that he expected to have secured pledges of support from the New York bosses, and his failure to do so made his disapointment correspondingly great. The fact was commented on here that on the day he was in the metropolis the Republican dailies of that city, as if by agreement, were full of talk about the probability of Blaine after all becoming the candidate. Mr. Harrison must have regarded this as significant; it was certainly so regarded here. Whatever the outcome, it is apparant to even the most casual observer that the Harrison boom is rapidly losing ground here.

The naval appropriation bill, recently passed by the House, has been reported to the Senate with amendments largely increasing the appropriations for new ships. Senator Daniels' amendment appropriating $300,000 for the international naval review next year was reduced to $50,000.

The substitute for the House Chinese exclusion bill, which was passed by the Senate early this week, is in the hands of a conference committee, and although the sentiment of the House is strongly in favor of a more rigid exclusion than is possible under the present laws, which the Senate substitute extends for ten years from expiration, it is regarded as probable that the House may accept it as the most that can be gotten from the Senate.

The House Judiciary committee will report a resolution authorizing an investigation of the Pinkerton detective agencies. The resolution to be reported is a substitute for the one offered by Representative Watson of Georgia, several months ago, which contained charges against the Pinkerton system.

Representat Bryan's bill placing lumber on the free list, which is a duplication of the lumber section of the old Mills tariff bill, would have been reported to the House this week by the Ways and Means committee, if the Republican members of that committee had not requested a postponement of final action until the next meeting of the committee.

James R. Young, the deposed executive clerk of the Senate, having failed to get the Senate to investigate the charges of betraying executive secrets under which he was dismissed, is now endeavoring to have an investigation of the charges made by the standing committee of newspaper correspondents, in charge of the press galaries of Congress, the ground being that if the charges are true he is not entitled to the privileges of those galleries, as a reputable newspaper correspondent.

Senator Hill said, speaking of the apportionment of New York: "The apportionment is both morally right and constitutionally correct. The pretence of the Republicans that it is unconstitutional will avail them nothing. The courts must and will decide against them, because their claims are frivolous and ungrounded. For seven years the Republicans refused to take an enumeration, to make an apportionment when they had an opportunity to do so themselves, and now they must suffer the consequences of their folly."

Everyone regrets, and none more than the gentleman himself, that Representative Enloe, in a burst of temper, called Commissioner Raum a liar. It was an unfortunate occurrence, viewed from any standpoint. True, Mr. Enloe contends that Mr. Raum had in a private conversation admitted doing the thing which he so positively denied when testifying to the House committee, but his testimony could have been officially contradicted disproved without the use of language that should never be permissible among gentleman.

Chairman Hatch of the House Agricultural committee, expects to get his anti-option bill before the House as soon as the free binding twine bill is disposed of. He thinks the bill will pass, but its opponents are vere active and say they expect to defeat it.

Senator Sherman was evidently acting under instructions when he amended Senator Teller's resolution calling upon the president for information concernthe international monetary conference, which rumor says has been arranged for, with the words "if not incompatible with the public interests," for Mr. Harrison in his letter in answer to the resolution says: "In my opinion, it would not be compatible with the public interest to lay before the Senate at this time the information requested." He promises that the Senate shall have the information "at the earliest moment after definite information can properly be given," which probably means when it can best be used to aid the Republican interests in the coming presidential campaign. There will be some interesting talk in the Senate on Mr. Harrison' letter.

The Oldest Passionist.

Rev. Father Stanislaus, one of the oldest priests of the Passionist Order in this country, died Tuesday morning at the Monastery on Mt. Oliver in the seventy-ninth year of his age. He had been sick but a few days, having contracted a severe cold last week, which, owing to his advanced age, terminated in his death. Although well advanced in years, he was a remarkable and vigorously active man. Only a week ago Sunday he said mass at the Monastery.

Father Stanislaus had a remarkable career, and is the last of the original band of three Passionists who established the Order in this country. In company with Father Anthony, who was more prominently known during his life than Father Stanislaus, he came to this country at the urgent request of Bishop O'Connor, the then Administrator of this Diocese, and founded the Order on the South Side, on Christmas Day, 1852.

The greater part of his life in the United States has been spent in this section, and he was almost equally as well known as his conferree.

Burned in Their Beds.

CORRY, May 2.—About 7 o'clock Saturday morning the small residence of John Long, Jr., burned with all its contents. Two little children asleep in bed were taken out literally roasted. The mother who has a little babe, was busily engaged about her household duties when the fire burst out. She grabbed her babe and ran screaming to the yard. She started to return, but a gust of flame badly burned her. When neighbors dragged out the boy all on fire, the little ones were dead, their bodies burned and disfigured. It is supposed that the gas-pipe burst near the stove, causing the fire, and the house burned like a tinder-box.

HENRY K. BOYER on Monday issued his last statement as state treasurer. The statement shows a balance in the general fund of $7,439,061.19, exclusive of moneys appropriated to the sinking fund. This amount is distributed among thirty-six banks. The balance in the sinking fund is $480,050.09, distributed among seventeen banks.

Suicide Club Freaks.

CHICAGO, May 3.—If the story of Andrew Rudman is to be believed, Chicago has a full-fledged suicide society, two members of which attempted to take their own lives last night. One, Joseph Kraker, went quietly to Douglas Park, put a bullet through his brain and dropped dead.

The other, Rudam himself, tried to add a little sensation to his taking-off, and is still alive and uninjured. He began by stealing $30, with which he purchased a revolver. He then called on his sweetheart, Eva Dressler, shot at her without effect; chased her father around the block, firing as he ran; sent a couple of bullets through the front door as the prespiring parent reached the house; shot at a crowd of small boys; shot at his own head and missed, and finally wound up by sending a ball through the coat of the policeman who arrested him. To-day he confessed his connection with the suicide club, of which Kraker was also a member.

Buried the Wrong Man.

HARRISBURG, April 29.—Fourteen years ago Charles Edward Eichelberger left his home in Middletown, Pa., and went west, where he dropped the name of Eichelberger and wrote to his friends in the East over the name of Charles Edwards. Why he changed his name nobody knows. A few weeks ago his sister Mrs. John Zimmerman, received a telegram announcing his death. She telegraphed funds to have the body brought to Middleton at an expense of $240. It was buried and the family mourned the man as dead.

This week the stepfather, John Matthias, received a letter from the alleged dead son, asking for information from home and stating that he had not had a letter for some time. The theory is that another Charles Edwards at Creed, Col., obtained Eichelberger's mail and was found dead with one of Mrs. Zimmerman's letters on his person.

Caused a Sensation.

PITTSBURG, May 1.—Something of a sensation was created on the street in front of St. Mary's Catholic church, Mount Washington, to-night, by Mary Cameron, a crazy woman, assaulting Rev. Father O'Connel with a hatchet. The woman rushed at the priest just as he was entering the church and struck at him with the hatchet, but he warded off the blow and seized her by the arm. She fought like a tigress and tried her utmost to kill him. Finding that he could not overpower her, Father O'Connel drew a revolver, but by this time assistance arrived and the woman was arrested. It seems that many years ago Mrs. Cameron lost her property through litigation, and that at that time a priest testified against her. The loss turned her brain and she thus had an antipathy to priests ever since. She will be placed in an asylum.

A Negro with a Neck.

HARRISON, Miss., April 29.—Coleman Blackburn stands to-day without a rival for the strength of his neck. On the 20th inst. he was hanged for wife-murder at Fayette, and is reported to-day able to walk around his room and converse with friends. After hanging for 36 minutes and being pronounced dead by three of the local physicians, his supposed remains were turned over to relatives for interment who reside in Franklin county, a distance of thirty-five miles overland. While en route to the family burying ground a scratching on the inside of the coffin was herd. The top of the coffin was removed and the supposed corpse was found to be breathing. A local physician was at once summoned and after treatment the patient was pronounced out of danger. He was hanged by the new system and was jerked up fully six feet with a three-foot drop.

Roasted to Death in a Wreck.

COATESVILLE, Pa., May 1.—An east bound freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad was wrecked by a broken brake rigging, near this place about midnight last night, both tracks being blocked. A west bound train composed of mail and express cars, was due at the time and before it could be signaled ran into the wreck. The locomotive of the latter train was thrown from the track and buried in an embankment.

Harry Shultz, engineer, and Harry Martin, fireman, both of Philadelphia, were caught in the wreck and Martin was roasted to death, his body being almost unrecognizable. Shultz was seriously scalded before being rescued and is in a very critical condition. Severel express cars took fire aad were consumed. The tracks were blocked for the rest of night.

The Will Was Forged.

PITTSBURG, May 3.—The Simcox contested will case of McKeesport was decided to-day in favor of the plaintiff, Miss Dezie Simcox. Miss Simcox was the adopted daughter of Samuel Simcox, a wealthy stock dealer, and it was supposed that he had left all his property but his wife's dowry to her, but after his death the will could not be found.

A few days later Mrs. Simcox produced a paper which bequeathed the entire estate to her. The adopted daughter contested the will and at the trial a man named Monk testified that he had forged the documents for Mrs. Simcox, who promised to give him $10,000. The money was not forthcoming and he made the confession. The estate is estimated at over one hundred thousand dollars. Mrs. Simcox will be allowed her one-third interest.

To Test the Law.

LANSING, Mich., May 3.—Colonel Muffield, of Detroit, counsel for William McPherson and thirteen of her Republican presidential electors, to-day asked the Supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel the secretary of state to have delivered to the session in the state a notice in writing, between July 1 and September 1, that at the next general election there will be chosen electors for president and vice president of the United States for the state of Michigan. The action was brought to test the constitutionality of the Miner election law, which was enacted by the last legislature. The court issued an order to show why writs should not issue as prayed for. The order is returnable on May 12.

—In attempting to stop a runaway plough team James Mahurn, of Fort Scott, Kan., was ripped by the plough from hip to neck and bled to death.

—Two masked robbers called H. Hall, a Camden Tenn., merchant, out of bed to buy burial clothes and, forcing him to open the safe, escaped with $1,500.

—Judge Braley, of the superior court, of Lowell, has decided that women suing for divorce may not resume their maiden name, as it complicates the records.

—German railway directors are experimenting with rails made of paper, which are said to be as superior to steel rails as paper-cars heels are to those made of iron.

—The tanners of Tioga, Potter, McKean, Cameron, Clinton and Elk counties will use 140,000 tons of bark this season, to get which they strip 250,000,000 feet of timber.

—A woman in Blaine, Me., only 28 years old, has a chest measurement of 65 inches, waist 61 inches, and she weighs 415 pounds. She is unable to stand more than a minute or two.

—Every lumber mill in the Lacrosse, Wis., district closed down to remain so until the labor troubles are settled. Two thousand men are out of employment in consequence.

—Mrs. Adam Zeil, aged fifty, committed suicide at Huntingdon Monday evening by drowning. A serious accident which happened to her son Saturday caused the woman to lose her reason.

—John Farber, of Tamaqua, while cutting timber on the mountain, was bitten by a copperhead snake, and is now in a very critical condition at his home. No hope is entertained for his recovery.

—Five hundred quarrymen and stone cutters employed in the quarries at Stony Creek and Leetes Island are on a strike because their demand for an increase of wages was refused by the quarry owners.

—The new Parisian fashion in stockings is made with separate compartment for each toe. This is said to be a sure cure for corns, which are caused by the rubbing of the skin against that of the neighboring toe.

—The journeymen bricklayers and plasterers of Easton went on a strike on Monday because the bosses had not granted their request for $2.50 per day of nine hours. Heretofore they had received $2.50 per day of ten hours' work.

—Walter Clark, a railroad man, from Portland, Ore., went to Tracy, Cal., to kill Miss Tilly Ludwig, a daughter of a hotel proprietor there, but was himself shot and dangerously wounded by the girl's brother, Henry Ludwig. Clark had been engaged to marry Miss Ludwig, but the engagement was broken.

—James White, of Irwin, the large coal land owner, and the principal in the recent Irwin bank failure, has just sold 1,500 acres of land to the Westmoreland Coal Company for $250,000, receiving the first payment down. The tract is situated in Versailles and North Huntingdon townships, Westmoreland county, and adjoins the other lands of the company.

—In Rockland, Me., is a dog thief. Its favorite plunder is clothing, and in daily excursions about the neighborhood during the past winter it has pilfered enough to stock a shop. Last week it went into an open hallway, picked up a costly muff and started for home, hotly pursued by a man and two excited women. The owner got her muff and the dog got a beating.

—Sheriff Luna, of Searcy county, Ark., who has held that position for ten years, went to Texarkana, a few days ago in company with a friend named Hollis. Money, which Luna furnished, was spent most lavishly. His bondsmen caused his arrest. Hollis was also arrested, and on his person was found nearly a thousand dollars, which he had taken from Luna. In three days Luna spent over $2,000 of the county's money.

—On Monday night a fire started in the rear of the stage at Leob's Variety Theatre, in Leadville, Col., and in a few moments the entire stage was ablaze. The flames spread rapidly, and before they were brought under control half of the block on State street was gutted. A woman and a little child were burned to death, and there were many narrow escapes. The damage is estimated at $40,000, with about $10,000 insurance.

—Seventy-five years ago Thomas L. walker, then a mere boy, planted four walnuts by the roadside opposite his father's house in the Eleventh civil district, near Cedar Bluff, and some ten miles west of Knoxville. He died ten years ago, yet he lived to see four walnut trees grow to the measure of four feet in diameter, worth, if cut and properly seasoned, at least $400 each. Had he planted ten acres they would be worth at least $2,000,000.

—The Childs-Drexel Home for Union Printers at Colorado Springs, near Denver, has been completed and dedicated. The building stands in eighty acres of ground. It is four stories in height, with basement, built in the Renaissance style, and has been erected at a cost of about $60,000. It has a frontage of one hundred and forty-four feet by a depth of forty-four, with a wing in the rear north end of seventy feet. At one end there is a round tower and at the other a square one, while over the main entrance rises a tower which adds to the imposing appearance of the structure.

BALTZELLS'

POINT D' IRLADE,

A beautiful but peculiarly woven fabric, much used for hats and dresses, which comes in wide flounce widths, with narrow to match. We have a number of styles with four widths to each style:

Narrow	8c. to 20c
Wider Style	25c. to 45c
Fourteen inches wide	45c. to 90c
A much wider pattern	$1.00 to $1.25

POINT DE GENES

Is a popular open mark novelty, used to trim India silks, challies and chambrays, especially for yokes, collars and cuffs, vests, etc., and in ecru shades. No summer wardrobe is complete without a dress trimmed with Point de Genes.

Wide widths for flouncings	37½ to 40c
A deeper pattern	62 to 90c
Narrow widths to match	18 to 24c

POINT D'ALENCON,

A handsome silk cream imitation, for silks in cream and light designs, China, flowered, foulards and figured surahs. There is a great variety of patterns and altogether the handsomest line of silk laces we have ever carried.

Narrow widths, per yard	10 and 25c
Medium " "	20 to 65c
Nine inches deep	25, 50, 58 and 75c
Fourteen inches deep	75 and 90c

BLACK CHANTILLY,

in delicate mesh and graceful designs. These laces are especially beautiful and much admired. With the heavier Bourbon laces and the Guipure de Venise it seems as if the pinnacle of beauty and variety had been reached, as well as the low prices prevailing.

To Correspondents.

Whether you write in prose or verse,
When you've got a thing to say,
Say it! Don't take half a day.
When your tale's got little in it,
Crowd the whole thing in a minute.
Life's short—a fleeting vapor—
Don't fill the whole of your paper
With a tale which, at a pinch,
Could be covered in an inch.
Boil her down until she shimmers;
Polish her until she glimmers.
When you've got a thing to say,
Say it! Don't take half a day.

—Several sheep-killing dogs are prowling around at night in Carroll township. William Wasser, John Hogue and Seraphim Sieglndinger, of that township, have each recently lost two sheep and are now lying in wait for the mutton-killing canines.

—While cleaning up the market square last yesterday morning, the men under Street Commissioner Best found a fireman's axe. It was lying about eighteen inches under the sand and evidently belonged to one of the fire companies, and was washed there by the flood. It was turned over to Michael Irwin, driver of the Assistance company's team, who will preserve it as a relic.—Johnstown Herald.

—John F. Bowman, a wealthy and much respected citizen of Altoona, died on Monday aged sixty-eight years. He established the first hotel in Altoona and was for twenty years a director of the First national bank.

—John McClarren, an old resident of Croyle township, was brought to jail on Tuesday for safe keeping. The old man has lately been showing evidences of insanity and his friends thought it better to have him confined. He will in all probability be sent to Dixmont.

—A man living in Berks county, this state, was born on February 22, was married on February 22 to a woman born on February 22. They have five children, every one of whom were born on February 22. That family certainly shows due reverence to Washington's natal day.

—On Tuesday evening the laborers employed on the dump at Dishart's on the new railroad let a large rock roll down which struck on the brick work of the arch over the stream and knocked a hole in it about ten or twelve feet in diameter. It will take several days to repair the damage.

—John Daily, a war veteran of the late war, who was so outragcously misused by a band of masked robbers some two weeks ago near Hollidaysburg, died on Friday. While $500 reward is offered and local officers are busily engaged searching for the murderers, no arrests have yet been made.

—The Metropolitan Theatre Company played at the Opera House in this place on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The company is a good one, and although the receipts were not what the company deserved, each play was given with a high degree of talent and art worthy of a crowded house.

—Sarah the little daughter of Mr. Abel Lloyd, Jr., formerly of this place, died at Burrell station, Westmoreland county, on Sunday last and her remains were brought here on Tuesday. The interment took place at Lloyd's cemetery after the arrival of the noon train. The child's age was two years and six months.

—Clarence Cameron, of Summerhill, aged fifteen was killed on the railroad at that place on Wednesday of last week in attempting to cross the railroad tracks. After the passage of a freight train he crossed to the other track without noticing the engine of a passenger train which struck him causing instant death.

—The horses purchased in Kentucky by Messrs. O'Hara, Luther & Davis and J. B. Denny, of this place, and Thomas Peach, of Loretto, arrived last week in good condition after their long ride in the cars and are handsome specimens of horse flesh. Messrs. O'Hara, Luther & Davis bought six, Mr. Peach three and Mr. Denny two.

—The engineer corps surveying the line from Bradley's to the Blacklick are busily at work every day and are now down near Thomas' meadow. The line run north of town is much nearer water level at Beulah than the line run through the town several years ago which kept pretty well up on the side of the hill at the deserted village.

—On Wednesday of last week a number of spikes were driven between the rails on the Cresson & Coalport railroad with the evident intention of wrecking the southbound passenger train. Luckily an extra freight train passed along and escaped accident. A train was wrecked at the same point about five years ago when the fireman was killed.

—On Saturday last the large factory of the Prairie State Incubator Co., at Homer City was destroyed by fire, as was also, a two-story dwelling house belonging to Samuel Creswell involving a loss of about $5,000. For a time Guthries' large lumber mills and yard containing about $25,000 worth of lumber were in great danger but were finally saved.

—Thirteen Italian laborers who were working on the railroad in Munster township were arrested on Monday and taken to Gallitzin, charged with robbing a peddler. According to the peddler's story, a short time ago he stayed over night in their shanty and in the morning his pack had been robbed. After the prisoners were taken to Gallitzin the matter was settled.

—A dispatch to the Pittsburg papers from Johnstown on Tuesday says: A wide open illicit distillery is in bold operation about two miles above Conemaugh. A large flat rock hangs over the ravine, and when a sum of money is placed upon it and the purchasers discreetly withdraw they may soon return to find instead of the money a bottle or jug of real mountain dew. Officers are after the gay moonshiners.

—A Hungarian miner named Moleski met a horrible death in the Mammoth shaft, Westmoreland county, shortly before noon on Monday. The miners had mounted the cage to be drawn to the top of the shaft, when in some manner the unfortunate Hun was caught between the side of the cage and the shaft and was instantly killed. He leaves a wife and several children.

—The Altoona Gazette of Wednesday says that George Patrick, the Hungarian who was injured last week on the railroad near Portage by having his legs crushed, is in a very precarious condition, and his death is expected to occur before long. He has so far refused to allow the members to be amputated, despite the advice of surgeons. Tuesday night he was told that the operation would still leave him a chance for life, but he says he would rather die than be a cripple.

—Mr. Earhart Farabaugh, a well-known citizen of Allegheny township, died suddenly on the Thomas Eger farm, in Carroll township, on Monday, aged 63 years. A short time ago the executors of Thomas Eger, deceased, sold the farm and Mr. Farabaugh became the purchaser. On Monday, while looking over the farm, Mr. Farabaugh became very sick, and continuing to grow worse, sent to Carrolltown for a physician and a Catholic priest. Mr. Farabaugh, however, died before their arrival.

—Messrs. Thomas Barnes and William P. Duncan, of Philipsburg, and J. G. Lytle, of Clearfield, were here on Wednesday and drove out to Jackson township to inspect the Davis tract of land, containing about 1,300 acres, which is underlaid with coal and heavily timbered. They have had an expert examining the land for the past month and are negotiating for its purchase. The land belongs to Captain Thomas Davis, of this place, and his two brothers, Timothy, of East Conemaugh, and David, of Morrellville.

—Thousands of railroad ties and valuable timber were destroyed by a forest fire on the ridge east of Youngstown, Westmoreland county, on Sunday. Over 1,000 acres of the most valuable timber in that locality was destroyed, and but for the prompt action of the people living in the neighborhood, houses and barns would fallen prey to the angry flames. The ties and other prepared timber were the property of the poor mountaineers, and their loss—a winter's work—is great. The fire is believed to be the work of an incendiary.

—A fatal explosion occurred on the Pennsylvania & Northwestern railroad at Irvona, by which two men lost their lives. The boiler of engine No. 25, running on the above road, exploded at half-past ten o'clock on Wednesday morning, killing Engineer F. L. Moulton and Fireman Charles Ake. The engineer's body was found a hundred yards from the scene and the fireman was blown entirely through a box car. One piece of iron weighing about 500 pounds was found over a quarter of a mile from the scene of the accident, and smaller pieces were scattered through the town. Both engineer and fireman leave families.

—John Edmiston, of Jackson township, aged 75 years, was brought to jail on Saturday last by Sheriff Shumaker charged on oath of George Simmons with shooting the latter's heiffer. Edmiston is badly crippled and hardly able to walk.

—A young man named Carner, residing at Hublersburg, Centre county, is only seventeen years of age but his heighth is six feet four inches. He is slender and is growing rapidly and bids fair to become the tallest man in the United States.

—Mr. Peter Riley, one of firm of contractors McManus & Riley, who have the building of the section of the branch railroad from Kaylor's to Cresson, died in Munster on Monday last from pneumonia. Mr. Riley was about forty years of age and a resident of Altoona, where his remains were forwarded on Monday last for interment.

—Thomas Thompson, a Pennsylvania railroad brakeman, while engaged in making a coupling on Monday evening, slipped and fell across the track. The train passed over his right thigh, inflicting fatal injuries. Thompson was a resident of Derry, near which place the accident occurred. He was married and leaves a wife and several children.

—Wesley Miller, a nephew of "General Seigel" Miller, moonshiner and murderer of old man Hochstetler, had a hearing before United States Commissioner McCandless at Pittsburg on Friday last, charged with illicit distilling, and was held for court in the sum of $500. All of the witnesses against him offered to go on his bond and they were accepted. One of them said he would like to have the defendant go home till the fall term of court. This was agreed to.

—While overhauling a passenger coach at Altoona last week, fifteen $500 bonds were found concealed in the ventilator of the water closet. The bonds were drawn by the Tennessee and Nashville railroad in favor of Smith county, Tenn. They were due in the year 1892, and the coupons are cut off up until January, 1892. They were turned over to the railroad authorities to await instructions from the Smith county officials. It is supposed they had been stolen, and the thief being possibly hard pressed, had hidden them in that strange place.

—Joseph Pala is the name of the Finlander who attempted suicide in the Carrolltown lock-up, as reported in last week's FREEMAN. He was brought to jail here on Thursday of last week and on Tuesday of this week was taken to the Almshouse, where he is reported to have a fair chance for recovery. In his country the penalty for burglary is death, and when arrested and charged with that crime and being ignorant of the laws of this country, he thought he would be executed for certain. It is said that he is innocent of the crime and an alibi can be proven in his case.

—The Pittsburg Dispatch of Monday last has the following: John T. Underwood, of Coal Center, the insane man who escaped from a constable at the Panhandle depot on Saturday last, is once more a prisoner at Central Station. The constable was taking the prisoner to the Washington county poor farm, and while waiting for a train Underwood managed to give the officer the slip. The escaped prisoner managed to get as far as Ebensburg, Pa., where he was captured by Sheriff Wilson, who is now on his way to the Washington county farm with him.

—James White, of Irwin, has just sold 1,500 acres of coal land for a quarter of a million that was involved in the Pool bank failure. The Westmoreland Coal Company is the purchaser. The tract is situated in Versailles and north Huntingdon townships Westmoreland county, and adjoins the other lands of the company. A large shaft will be sunk to develop the property, and ultimately this promises to be the largest colliery in the gas-coal regions. The coal will be transported over a lateral railroad, which is to be constructed from the Sewickly branch of the Pennsylvania railroad at Fulton post-office.

—The annual meeting of the Juniata Valley Editorial Association was held in the Tribune office in Altoona last Friday. There was a fair attendance, and after the opening of the meeting for business, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, H. C. Dern; vice president, Frank Mortimer; secretary and treasurer, E. Conrad; executive committee, T. H. Haster, Hugh Lindsey and W. W. Trout. Several minor questions were discussed and the merits of a number of places for the next excursion were put forward. The date of the excursion was finally fixed for September 5th, but the executive committee was given power to select the route. The meeting then adjourned.

—An exchange says there seems to be pecuniary responsibilities that don't make it pleasant or safe to be a borough councilman, for some one has gone to the trouble of discovering that all contracts made by borough councilmen with gas or electric light companies for the lighting of the streets of any borough, and to be paid for out of the borough funds, are illegal and cannot be collected off the borough, the councilmen being personally and individually responsible for all such bills contracted. And, if the taxpayers of any borough saw fit to do so, they could bring suit against councilmen and collect all moneys paid out on such contracts. This is not a pleasant situation for borough fathers, but it is said to be the law nevertheless.

—A letter received at this office from Chest Springs, Cambria county, says that a kite 36½x26½ inches in size, alighted on a farm at that place on the 12th, inst., bearing a card with the inscription, "Hillside, March 12, 1892." It looks as if this kite had been started from Hillside, on March 12, and after a vacation trip of a month decided to locate permanently in a Cambria county meadow. Doubtless some one at Gettesburg is mourning his long lost kite and will be glad to know that it fell into kind hands—those of a girl. There's quite a foundation for a romance here, and if the sender of that kite will call at the Gazette office he will be furnished with the address of the lady who has taken such good care of his high-flyer.—Indiana Gazette.

—Mr. John Fulton, General Mining engineer of the Cambria Iron Company of Johnstown, was in this vicinity on Tuesday looking up the company's interests. The company is endeavoring to make a deal with Messrs. Powell and Ashcroft who operate the Cresson shaft, to buy that plant. The negotiations are about closed, and if everything is satisfactory it will give the Cambria Iron Company access to about 3,000 acres of the best coking coal in this region. The capacity of the Cambria Iron Company, for coke is about 900 tons a day, which will add greatly to the prosperity of this place. If they can agree on terms they will build 300 coke ovens and make other improvements that will give employment to a large number of men.—Gallitzin Vindicator.

—A number of Catholic pastoral changes have recently been made in the Pittsburg diocese. Among them are the following: Rev. Thomas Walsh to be pastor at Newry Vice Father Dunphy, who has gone to Ireland; Rev. Father O'Shea, late assistant pastor at St Peter's, Allegheny, to be pastor at Huntingdon; Rev. Father Keating, transferred from Wilmore, where he was assistant pastor, to St Peters; Rev. J. Bauer, late of St. Mary's Altoona goes to Rochester; Father Schoener, recently ordained, goes to St Mary's; Rev. E. McEvoy, of St Augustine, is transferred to Coylesville, Butler county; Rev. John Luddon, late assistant to Rev. O. P. Gallaher, South Side, Pittsburg, goes to St Augustine, Father McEnrue, of Coylesville, takes charge of the new church at Ehrenfeld.

—John Verban, an Austrian who worked in the Cambria Iron Company's Blooming mill in Johnstown, on Tuesday night, while wheeling ashes up a plank to a car, was jolted off by an engine shifting cars, and falling with his left leg across the rail, had it ground off between the ankle and the knee. He was taken to the Cambria Hospital where it was amputated at the knee.

—A grand re-union of the Army of the Potomac will be held in Scranton, Pa., on the 15th and 16 of June. The occasion promises to be the most memorable in the history of the society since the re-union of 1869. The ranks of the veterans will be conspicuous for the vacancies that death has mady therein. In the very nature of things these re-unions will soon become a thing of the past. Another quarter of a century will, if it does not close them entirely, leave but a few grizzled men leaning heavily upon their staffs as representatives of the grand body of active, restless, ambitious soldiers, who laid the shaping hand of their valor upon the destiny of the dark years of the civil war.

—In relation to coal matters the Pittsburg Post says: "Mr. Scott, of Altoona, is out on a geological tour with the purpose of securing data for the formation of a geological map showing the connective and lithoogical relation existing between the Clearfield Cambria and Somerset coal formation and the Pittsburg measures. The survey will extend from Gallitzin along the P. R. R. to Pittsburg, and the result is anticipated with unusual interest by geologists throughout the state. The necessity for such survey arises from the fact that a new school of geologists persist in claiming that the Pittsburg coal system is geologically the same as the carboniferous strata in Clearfield, Cambria and Somerset. Mr. Scott, who is a newspaper man of long experience, has made geology a life study, and it is no inconsiderable credit to him and his profession that he has been selected by leading scientists to determine the matter at issue: If, as he seems to claim, the Clearfield coal veins all lie beneath the Pittsburg system, it will be a matter of very considerable economic interest to the people of this city."

Obituary.

STORM.—Died at his home in Clearfield township on Monday, May 2, 1892, Mr. Lewis Storm, in the 83rd year of his age.

The deceased was born at Dawson's Mills in Allegheny township on the 12th of June, 1809, and at the time of his death was 82 years, 10 months and 20 days old. He is the last of the family of John Storm, one of the pioneer settlers of Cambria county, who died February 15th, 1856. On the 23rd of February, 1858, he married Marguerite Pfoff at Loretto, the ceremony that made them one being performed by Rev. D. A. Gallitzin. After his marriage he resided in Loretto until 1848, following his trade as carpenter and undertaker, and then removed to the farm upon which he died. He is survived by his wife Marguerite, and three sons, John, of Altoona; Lewis Theodore, who resides near Chest Springs, and Augustine G., who lives on the farm where he died. His daughters are Mary, wife of Thomas Callaghan, of Chest Springs; Susan, wife of W. A. B. Little, of Loretto; Agnes, wife of George Byrnes, of Brisbin, Pa., and Ellen, wife of John Brady McCullough, of Cumberland county, Pa. His remains were interred in the cemetery at St. Augustine on Wednesday last after a high mass of requiem for the repose of his soul. May he rest in peace.

Thomas Davidson and Maria Gibbs, Portage.

R. J. Berkebile, Johnstown, and Nettie F. Shugart, Dale.

Railroad Gossip.

The continued fight between the Pennsylvania and Beech Creek Companies for right of way up the river was brought to a close last week amicably. The Beech Creek abandons the river country and the Pennsylvania concedes right of way up Chest creek to the Patton coal lands. The work on the Chest creek branch will commence at once.

The building of an outlet for the Helvetia coal seems to be an assured fact and the connection with the Beech Creek is also certain, but just where the connection is to be made is the only thing unsettled. Two points are contemplated—either at Clearfield or Curry Run. The people of the county seat should make every effort possible to have the connection here as the same would greatly benefit the town in many ways. Let the enterprising, influential men take the matter in hand and leave nothing undone to achieve success.—Clearfield Public Spirit.

Spring Fever.

The gradual opening of the budding trees and the shooting upwards of the blades of grass are signs of the advent of spring. The farmer is already at work stimulating the growth of his crop by fertilizers to insure a rich harvest. Nature needs stimulation and why should not man? The system needs building up after the attacks of grippe and cold, and the only tonic is pure whiskey. Max Klein, of Allegheny, Pa., has the endorsement of eminent physicians, certifying to the purity of his famous Silver Age and Duquesne Rye Whiskies. Sold everywhere at $1.50 and $1.25 per full quart. Six-year-old Penna. Rye Whiskies, absolutely pure, at $1.00 per quart or six quarts for $5.00. Send for catalogue and price list of all kinds of liquors to Max Klein, 82 Federal street, Allegheny, Pa.

"During a recent flying trip to Ebensburg the writer of this article visited the Marble and Granite Works of Jas. Wilkinson & Son, which were founded in 1880. The senior member of this progressive firm had an experience of thirty-five years, and his son and partner is also a skilled worker. The class of work they produce is of the highest class and style. From four to five hands are employed and the very finest monuments in the county seat are specimens of their skill. Shipments are made through this and to adjoining counties.

"All kinds of cemetery work is executed and a fine line of Iron Railing is handled and sold. The stock of work kept on hand (received by the car-load) is very extensive and many very fine monuments are exhibited, two especially being executed in the rustic style and in imitation of brickwork, with a finely executed cross on the top. Among the many fine monuments erected by this firm is an elabo- fifteen-foot-high monument for Sheriff Griffith, monument for Father Christy (sixteen feet high), also monuments for John and Sister and daughter of John Griffith. Both gentlemen give personal attention to business as well as executing the finest work. In all the time they have been in business they have adhered strictly to the maxim all goods just as represented and prices as low as the same class of work can be bought elsewhere. We have no hesitancy in recommending Messrs. Wilkinson & Son to our readers as reliable business men, progressive and trustworthy. Visit their establishment before ordering elsewhere."

CANNIBAL IRON WORKERS.

The Fan Tribe of Africa Smelt Ore and Thus Make Money.

A gentleman, for thirty years a missionary to the Fan tribe of Africa, has presented to the university of Pennsylvania some of the most important archæological collections ever made. The Fans are the powerful race of cannibals mentioned by Du Chaillu as the ruling people of the equatorial region. The collection shows a considerable degree of civilization and high mechanical skill, especially in metal work. Native iron, it seems, is plentiful, lies near the surface and is smelted by simply building a fire over the exposed ore. A very superior hammer hollows is used, and is said to be effective. The iron hammers weigh about twenty-five pounds, but the anvils, strange to say, are of stone.

The Fans are the only people in equatorial Africa who have a currency, and they are strong monometallists. The money is of iron, wrought into pieces resembling rusty hairpins with flat heads. They are put up in bundles of ten, and a hundred bundles is the market price of a wife.

Man-Eating Wild Men.

In the celebrated "Travalies" of Edward Webb many are dreams of stories that would make Joe Mullaston turn green with envy. One of the most exciting of these is that in the case of the wild men of Cracker Jack, which is as follows: "In the court of Prester John there is a wilde man, and another in the highest city of Constantinople, whose allowance is every day a quarter of raw mutton; and when any man doth for some notorious offence, then they are allowed every day a quarter of man's flesh. These wilde men are chained fast to a post every day, the one in Prester John's court, the other in the highest street of Constantinople, each of them having a mantell about their shoulders, and all over their bodies they have wonderful long hairs. They are chained by the neck for they speedily devour all that cometh within their reach."

LEAP YEAR.

Legends and Superstitions Connected with That Particular Period of Time.

The advent of "leap year" and the break in the regular order of days make anything in regard to the "bissextile" or "leap year" of more than ordinary interest, says the St. Louis Republic. Leap year has always been regarded with awe and superstition by the people of all countries. The peasantry of England affirm that peas and beans grow the wrong way in their pods—that is, the seeds are set contrary to the way they are in ordinary years. In Belgium the rural folks maintain that leap year is not only unpropitious for all farming operations, but that throughout the year the young of the domestic animals will not thrive as at other times. A similar fatality, they argue, extends to every kind of grass and plant, which becomes stunted or is blighted before attaining its normal size. The same peculiar ideas prevail in Russia, Turkey, Tartary, India and Arabia. The Russian proverb says: "If St. Cassian (February 29) looks on cow she will wither." In Arabia they say: "As weak as a bissextile camel," and in Turkey and Tartary they call all hunchbacks, dwarfs and other deformed men, women and children "leap-year freaks," but there are exceptions to this as well as to all other rules, for we find that in Italy, Greece and Sicily the rural proverb says, referring to leap year: "Plant much corn and vine, it's [the year] good for bread and wine." The ancient Romans considered February 29 a most critical season, always reckoning it among their unlucky days. That this belief has not by any means lost ground is evidenced by a deep-rooted dislike parents have to a child being born on leap day, it being a popular notion that to come into the world at such an odd time is ominous as signifying the babe's speedy exit. A variety of this superstition exists in Tuscany, and according to a piece of the folk-lore of that country when a child is born on leap-day either it or its mother will die before the end of the year. Hampson in his "Scioli Gesti Kalendarium" quotes the following from an old Saxon treatise: "Some assert that the bissextus, or leap day, comes through this, that Joshua prayed to God that the sun might stand still for one day's length that he might sweep the heathen from the land. It is true that the sun did stand still, but the bissextus is not through this, as some do think."

COULDN'T BEAR IT.

A Dog That Suffered the Pangs of Jealousy.

That dogs are affectionate is universally allowed, and that they are jealous no observer can doubt; but that a dog may show true philosophy in accepting a hard situation is occasionally proved. Says the London Spectator:

A young man had for some years owned a dog which was his constant companion. Recently, however, he married, and moved with his wife and dog into a house on the opposite side of the street from his father's house, his old home.

The dog was not happy, for attentions which had once been his own were now given to the young wife. His master tried to reconcile him to the altered state of things, and the bride endeavored to win his affection, but he constantly showed his displeasure and misery.

One day the master came home and sat down, putting his arm about his wife. Jack was lying by the fire, and he at once rose, approached the two, and made the usual exhibition of his disapproval.

"Why, Jack!" said his master. "This is all right. She is a good girl," and as he spoke he patted his wife's arm.

Jack looked up at him, turned away, and left the room. In a moment they heard a noise, and going into the hall, found him dragging his bed downstairs. He reached the front door and whined to be let out. The door was opened, and he dragged the bed down the steps, and across the street to his old home, where he scratched for admittance. Since then he has never returned to his master, and has refused all overtures toward reconciliation.

HEREDITARY DISEASE.

Striking Instances of Inherited Physical Ailments.

Readers may remember the horseshoe vein on the forehead which was the badge of all the tribe of Redgauntlet, and there is a well-known family in the south of France which for more than three centuries has boasted a white lock of hair. The Bourbon nose and the thick lip of the Hapsburgs are other instances in point.

Consumption, gout, insanity and cancer are the diseases which show the greatest tendency to run in families. Of the hereditary transmission of gout nearly every noble family in Europe can show the most conclusive proof. With regard to cancer the case is not so clear, but statistics prove that heredity can be more or less distinctly made out in a considerable proportion of those who fall victims to the disease.

The Bonaparte family furnishes a remarkable example of the hereditary transmission of cancer. One of the parents of Napoleon I. died of cancer of the liver or stomach. He himself died of cancer of the stomach, which also proved fatal to his brother Lucien, and to his sister, the beautiful Pauline Borghese.

A hereditary tendency to disease may not show itself till an advanced period of life; as Prof. Huxley, in his autobiographical sketch, has lately told us that a peculiar movement of the hands which was habitual in his mother has recently shown itself in him.

GATHERED THE ALMONDS.

A Heartless Deception Practiced on Industrious Woodpeckers.

An almond grower of this locality hit upon a neat device for gathering his crop last fall, says the Sutter City (Cal.) Enterprise. His trees bore largely, and this early became known to the yellow-hammers, a species of the woodpecker tribe of birds, and they had regularly stored away large quantities of ripe nuts taken from the orchard in the limb of an oak tree near by. The astute orchardist watched operations, and at last hit upon a novel nut and labor-saving plan, and he lost no time in putting it into execution.

The limb was sawed from the tree and replaced by a square-shaped funnel long enough to nearly reach the ground; a bucket was then set underneath. A genuine robbing game then went merrily on. The birds gathered the nuts, which they dropped into the funnel and down into the bucket below, and as regularly as night came the almond-grower would in turn empty it of its contents and set it back for a new supply. This was kept up until the entire crop had been gathered, and the yellow-hammers had departed broken-hearted at the heartless deception practiced upon them.

Basis of Weights and Measures.

British weights and measures—those now in use in the United States—are based upon the weight of a cubic inch of distilled water, which parliament, in the reign of George IV., decided to be 252.458 grains. Recent experiments show that a cubic inch of water at the temperature of maximum density equal 252.286 standard grains. On this account scientists are urging the readjustment of the gallon, bushel, etc.

ME Missed his Opportunity? DON'T Miss Yours, Reader. Too many people neglect their opportunities, and live on in poverty and obscurity. Harvesting depends on the kind of seed you sow. Look back on last year. Another year, opportunity. Life is passing! Reach out. Be up and doing. Improve your talents, and secure prosperity, prominence, peace. It was said by a philosopher of Rome that "Every dawn of day offers a golden opportunity to each human at some period of life; embrace it or close on it, and it is gone forever. Daylight comes, and goes, and who departs, never to return." How shall you find the golden opportunity? Investigate every chance that appears worthy, and if fair promises, that is what all successful men do. Look for an opportunity, such as is not often within the reach of laboring people. Investigate, if it will pay, at least, a good start in life. The common opportunity for many is here. Nearly all are in need of help, and invariably by very moderate sprees of either sex. All ages. You can do the work and live at home. Experience unnecessary. Capital not required. We start you. All is comparatively new and easy. Any one can do it well from the first hour. No one who is willing to work fails to make more than ordinary wages. Some do much better. Those who improve their spare moments, or devote their whole time to the business, are making handsome profits. Write at once and see for yourself. Costs nothing to judge. Address at once, H. Hallett & Co., Box 880, Portland, Maine.

THE NEGRO'S HUMOR.

He Is Often Funny Without Intending to Be.

Among the old-time negroes in the region was much of a humor very interesting. Their speech, says Col. Richard M. Johnston in the Century, by constant contact with the white man's, which it sought to imitate, had a quaintness and vivacity never heard on large seaboard and river plantations. In the lightness of the negro's heart, with an imagination that never sought to be curbed, his words and his deportment often had a fun as racy as any lover of that article reasonably could wish to see. Even his compliments, oftener than otherwise, were put forth with a resentment so peculiar as to provoke as well laughter as sympathy. Witness the following anecdote of the return to his old master, not very long ago, of one of his former slaves after having served another person for a year:

"Why, Jim, how happens it that you quit Perkins?" asked the gentleman.

"Well, now, Marse Jack, I gwine up en tell you jes how 't is. I wuck fer dah man all his' year, and I wuck hard, en I make him a good crop. Well, now, de troof is, I did git 'long him a few, but main' you, jes only a few, merlasses en tobarker, en one hat, en a pa'r o' shoes, en one little thing en 'nother. Well, den, Chris'mus come, en he say: 'Jim, I gwine make out our 'count.' En den he tuck he piece o' paper, en he pen, and he ink-vial, en he 'gin a-settin' down, en when he thoo wid dat job, he 'gin a-addin' up, en a-puttin' down, en a-kyar'in'; en he kyar'd en he kep' on a-kyar'in', and uck bless your soul en body! Marse Jackgo, when he got thoo, he done kyar's off all what was a comin' to me! En so I makes up my mine I does to hoff dar, en pervoose myself back to you, whar I knows dey not gwine be no sich kyarin' as dem." Then he joined heartily in the laugh raised by what had just occurred to him as being a good practical joke.

AN IMPORTED WIFE.

A Colonial Frenchman Has a Helpmate Shipped to Him Per Order.

Having made his fortune in the provinces, a wealthy Frenchman went to his business correspondent in Paris in the following terms:

"As I have taken a resolution to marry, and do not find a suitable match out here, do not fail to send by the next ship bound hither a young lady of the subjoined qualifications. Let her be of an honest family, between twenty and twenty-five years of age, of a middle stature and well proportioned; her face agreeable, her character blameless, and her constitution strong enough to bear the change of climate, that there may be no occasion to look for a second wife because of the death of the first, soon after she come to hand, which must be provided against as much as possible. Considering the great distance and the dangers of the sea, I demand no portion. If she arrives here on the conditions stipulated, with the present letter indorsed by you, I hereby engage to marry the bearer at fifteen days' sight."

This is a sensible letter, very different from ordinary billet-doux, and it was replied to with punctuality and in the same terms, says the Irish Times.

Among goods sent by his correspondent was the following item: "A young gentlewoman, twenty-five years of age, of the quality and stature as conditioned per order, as appears by the affidavits and certificates she has to produce."

A few days, we are told, were devoted to courtship, when the nuptial ceremony took place with great matrimonial ecstasy. "Nor did Martinique board a happier couple than the one thus singularly united."

SOME SPEED MAKERS.

Among Various Kinds of Locomotion the Bicycle Ranks Seventh.

Some curious facts are brought into prominence by a correspondent of Cycling, who has been at the pains to draw up a comparative table of the rates of speed in different modes of locomotion. The express train, of course, stands preeminent. Man has so far improved no way of getting about faster on the earth's surface. It will be a surprise, however, to many to learn that the safety bicycle, of which so much is heard nowadays, only occupies in this list the seventh place.

The fastest time in which a train has been known to travel a mile was 40 seconds and a fraction; to accomplish the same distance the fastest bicyclist who has hitherto ridden took 2½ minutes, or just about three times as long. An ice yacht has traveled a mile in 1 minute ten seconds, a running horse in 1 minute 35½ seconds, a torpedo boat in 1 minute 50 seconds, a steam yacht in 2 minutes 12 seconds and a fraction, and a skater on ice, with a favorable wind behind him, in 2 minutes and 12 seconds and rather a large fraction. A little way after the safety bicycle comes the ocean liner; the oarsman is much slower, taking 5 minutes 40 seconds to travel a mile, and the slowest of all is the swimmer, who requires very little short of an hour to perform the same journey.

EARLESS EZEKIEL EADS.

A Freak of Nature, Born Earless—His Hair Was Parted.

Ezekiel Eads, who died in Greene county, N. Y., in the spring of 1883, was surely a fit subject for a dime museum, even though he never descended to that level, says the Wheeling (W. Va.) Register. Strictly speaking, Eads was in several respects a most remarkable creature. He was born without ears, not even having apertures where the ears should have been. His deformity, sad as it was, may be said to have been partly alleviated by the curious construction of the inner portion of his head, which enabled him to hear common conversation through his mouth.

When addressed he would instantly open his mouth and readily give answers to interrogations put to him in an ordinary tone of voice. But Ezekiel's lack of ears was not his only distinction. He had a heavy crop of black hair spotted with white, the spots themselves being in exact shape of human ears, feet, hands, etc. When he was quite a small boy it was noticed that his black hair was interspersed with oddly shaped spots of white, which, however, did not take on their distinctive shapes until he had passed his fifteenth year.

When Mr. Eads' died he left one son, aged forty-five, whose hair was as black as coal, not a single gray hair being discernible, and another son, thirteen years of age, whose hair was as gray as that of a man of seventy.

FOREIGN ARISTOCRACY.

THE Grand Duke Paul, of Russia, is so tall that he is obliged to carry his bed with him, as he cannot find one at any public house long enough to hold all of him.

THE hair dressing of ladies was an expensive affair in the sixteenth century. Queen Elizabeth at one time was possessed of no fewer than eighty attires of false hair.

SIR JAMES BACON, since the death of Admiral Sir Provo Wallis, is, at the age of ninety-four, the oldest of the titled classes in England. The oldest titled baronet is Rev. Sir John Warren Hayes, who is ninety-two, and Admiral Sir Lewis Tobias Jones, the eldest knight of the bath, is also ninety-two.

WHAT IS REAL LABOR.

A Question Put to the Supreme Court of New York Courts.

A curious question has been settled by the board of appraisers at the custom house of New York, says the Chicago Tribune. The question constitutes labor in the manufacture of lace, a gambling article of lace, and other thin fabrics, exempt from a large importation duty, or in what is called "piece" lace. If lace is exempt, then a large number of cases subject to the duty will be released. If lace is not exempt, then a large number of cases will be subject to the duty. When addressed he would instantly open his mouth and readily give answers to interrogations put to him in an ordinary tone of voice. But Ezekiel's lack of ears was not his only distinction. He had a heavy crop of black hair spotted with white, the spots themselves being in exact shape of human ears, feet, hands, etc. When he was quite a small boy it was noticed that his black hair was interspersed with oddly shaped spots of white, which, however, did not take on their distinctive shapes until he had passed his fifteenth year.

When Mr. Eads' died he left one son, aged forty-five, whose hair was as black as coal, not a single gray hair being discernible, and another son, thirteen years of age, whose hair was as gray as that of a man of seventy.

FOREIGN ARISTOCRACY.

THE Grand Duke Paul, of Russia, is so tall that he is obliged to carry his bed with him, as he cannot find one at any public house long enough to hold all of him.

THE hair dressing of ladies was an expensive affair in the sixteenth century. Queen Elizabeth at one time was possessed of no fewer than eighty attires of false hair.

SIR JAMES BACON, since the death of Admiral Sir Provo Wallis, is, at the age of ninety-four, the oldest of the titled classes in England. The oldest titled baronet is Rev. Sir John Warren Hayes, who is ninety-two, and Admiral Sir Lewis Tobias Jones, the eldest knight of the bath, is also ninety-two.

PEOPLE WHO LACK SALT

Venetians Do Not Use It in Proportion to Their Food.

Salt does not enter into the food of the poor Venetians. They never eat it, and the hospital for the scrofulous children at Lido is filled by the unsalted food. Even the bread and rolls have their food. Every evening, says a letter to the Omaha Bee, I have witnessed a poorly-dressed woman, accompanied by two small children, a boy and a girl, go to a point on the pier, lean over the edge of the wall and fill a bottle with salt water. Becoming curious as to the use made of it, I approached her, with an apology for the question, and asked what she did with the sea water. Turning upon me her sweet face, in which true beauty were still visible, she replied that this was the only way she had of giving her children the taste of salt which they required. The tax imposed upon this article by the government placed it entirely beyond reach of the poor. Is it right, I ask, that a government should take from its people an article necessary to health?

Italians in America.

The Italians are showing the same ability in every direction, and in some of the Jews are driving out the Yankee street peddlers, newsboys, bootblacks, shopkeepers, so the citizens of Italy are making themselves felt in ways at first not open to them. Even the wires were first put underground by the Italians, drag the lines, and the mechanicians of other nationalities, to make the joints and splices in the conduits, made the joints and splices in the wires. A subway gang on Broadway the other day was found composed entirely of Italians. They did the wires, used the finest kind of work as intelligently as any one could have done. The chief carpenter on the Lido, it may be remarked, is a Venetian, and most of the men who made the selection erect the "cassines" for the fastidious persons who live there are of his countrymen. The architect who designed most of the cottages there is said to consider this Italian the best man he has ever employed.

Equine Insanity.

When a horse goes insane he rarely kills himself by butting his head in a corner. At the veterinary hospital connected with the university of Pennsylvania, the largest of its kind in the country, cases are treated in an oval box stall, perfectly dark. When the animal is heavily bedded with straw it is almost impossible for a horse to break a limb. Insanity or "dimness," as it is called, is quite common. It is usually caused by a lesion on the brain, and is incurable, but when caused by worms or ulcers it often treated successfully.

Crescentia.

This country came near having Crescentia as the name of one of its states instead of Maryland. It was originally intended to give that name to the territory granted
